

Post N level results release FAQ & recommendations

- 1) For students between 15-19 points, they are recommended to apply for both DPP and JIE N (3 years higher Nitec). Explore the new courses offered.
- 2) For students above 19 points, they should apply for JIE N.
- 3) For students that get below 12 points, they are unable to apply for PFP as PFP only starts next year Jan. They can apply to DPP or Sec 5 and wait for PFP. Once they get PFP offer, they can withdraw from DPP or Sec 5. Students who only consider PFP are strongly recommended to look at DPP courses instead of just coming to Sec 5. More options are always good.
- 4) Students can only use their CCA points after they meet the Minimum Entry Requirements (MER). So for PFP, the raw score must be 12 before using CCA points. Eg, if a student gets a raw score of 12, and she has 2 CCA points, she can then deduct and get a net score of 10. Another student with raw score of 14 (before CCA points) will not meet the MER.
- 5) Students waiting for their O'level results can use their prelim results to apply for DPP and JIE N.
- 6) If a student accepted DPP in Dec, he can still apply to DPP course after receiving his O'lvl results if he changes his mind about the course that was accepted. However, spaces will be limited. Do not withdraw first. There have been students withdrawing thinking that they can get another course with better results but was not offered a better course in the end. Apply in the second round and get the second offer before withdrawing.
- 7) Summary for those who did not do well,
 - try applying DPP first if the prelim result is good enough
 - if not, they can still try during second round of DPP in January, same period as PFP. Note that second round will have less course places offered.
 - try higher nitec as well. Basically, try as many options as possible. Can still reject / withdraw after that. Best offer stands
